

Putting it All Together for You, your Company & your Shareholders

Theme description:

The theme for the last day is to bring it all together for you, your company and your shareholders. The morning program is designed to do just that by giving you the tools to communicate, touch and improve the vendor / customer relationships that drive shareholder value. The first two days of the conference focus on how to cultivate the best talent and create currency through collaboration. Day three brings it all together by showing you how to deliver shareholder value by accelerating innovation in the fundamental supply chain utilities: information technology, transportation and emerging optimization tools. Information technology is the backbone of our supply chains and the communication utility among our supply and customer relationships. Transportation provides the "touch" between our vendors and customers. And, optimization processes provide critical improvement pathways through the complexities of billions and billions of supply chain transactions. The closing keynote sums it all up by showing you how harness the fundamental supply chain utilities to keep pace with the demands of Value Chain 2020.
