

RHONDA LUMMUS
Indiana University

Rhonda R. Lummus is a clinical professor of operations and supply chain management at the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University in Bloomington Indiana. She earned a Ph.D. in operations management from the University of Iowa and a BS degree in marketing from Bradley University. Prior to obtaining her Ph.D., she spent 15 years working in materials management positions for various manufacturing companies.

Rhonda has taught supply chain seminars and courses around the world including in Germany, Italy, Austria, South Africa, Korea and China. An active member of APICS – The Association for Operations Management for over 30 years she is the past President of the APICS – Education & Research Foundation Board of Directors along with having served on numerous APICS national committees. Rhonda has conducted research on various supply chain management topics writing articles on supply chain strategy and flexibility. She has published articles in Supply Chain Management Review, Journal of Operations Management, Production and Inventory Management Journal, among others. She has been affiliated with DBM for over five years, serving as a speaker, facilitator, and track chair for the Supply Chain Leaders in Action Conference.

